LETTER FROM TROUTLAND.

The Good Old County Court in Tucker-- A Notable Gathering of Heroes of the Lost Cause-- A Letter That is Slightly Personal.

That is Singhily Personal.

St. George, May 9, 1873.

To the Editors of the Intelligencer.

Your Democratic readers will be invigorated to learn that we have recently had a glarious ante bellum rejuvenation of exrebels, at the normalic stronghold of the rebellion, the Court House of Tacker county. Judgo Brannon opened his first court here, under the new Constitution, on hangman's day, to wit, on Friday, one week since. Hither assembled divers notables of the legal traternity, namely. on hangman's day, to wit, on Friday, one week since Hither assembled divers notables of the legal traternity, namely, T. A. Bradiord, A. G. Re.-er, and Sam Woods, from Barbour, C. J. P. Cresap, and T. J. Arnold, from Randolph; Gustavas Cresap, A. H. Bowman, and J. H. Carroll, from Preston; and Milliam Ewin, P. Lipscomb, and A. B. Parsons, of Tucker county; all good and lawful men, duly sworn in sovereign allegiance to the memory of Jeff. Davis, and to his heirs and assigns forever. Cohered with these in yoke fellowship are several other notables, not of the law, among whom may be mentioned for his high Democratic bearing, and his just contempt and defiance of the State liquor law, John R. Williamson, of Barbour county. I may add that with the hosts of good and true men aggregated here, buoyant with a chivalry resuctated from the subterranean depths of the last decade, were to be seen some pittable unnoticables, like lost sheep among goats; among whom as attorneys at law, may be specified Charles Hooton, of Preston county, and S. Dayton, of Barbour. The former of these loval despicables, had the sensibili-Charles Hooton, of Preston county, and S. Dayton, of Barbour. The former of these loyal despicables, had the sensibility and discrimination to both see and feel the incompatibility of his insufferable presence among these elect, and therefore "vamosed the ranche" early during the term; but I am compelled to state that ex-Senator Dayton, with his accustomed mental apathy, stupidity and insociance, maintained his repulsive and unbidden presence to the very last. My slight ob-this incorrigible alien to the sacred soil, concurring with the murky weather out of doors, only aided within, as I am happy to vouch, the inspiriting and vitalizing influences of genuine Democracy. That the flowing howl was well bowled from hand to hand around this joyous. Smily ring, you may assuredly depend.

Sam Woods strutted about amidst the grateful ceremonials of this festive reunion occasion, with imposing, and im-grateful ceremonias of this festive reu-nion occasion, with imposing, and im-pressive impomposity; and displayed all the sublimely supercillious screnity, and sell satisfaction, of an early spring rooster, about to make his first vigorous violent effort to crow. William Ewin's foxy phiz, beamed with boundless blissful and becoming benignity.

Major Reger, it is true looked harried and haggard, as if on the point of losing what few wits he had, and his remarks what few wits he had, and his remarks were curt, cutting, and caustic, as the rusty edge of an old sickle; but it was understood, that his mind and spirits were absent, ruminating upon the solution of fundamental democratic indoctrination, to wit; that one southern gentleman is equal at least to a dozen northern mudsitle; and that the 'sacred soil' has hospitable graves for the whole vermin race of wankee vandals. The Hon, T. A. Bradpitable graves for the whole vermin race of yankee vandals. The Hon. T. A. Bradford, and C. J. P. Cresap, who fought but bled not for the confederacy, reflected the self gratulation of a Napoleon, who warming at a fixeside in his palace at Paris, was heard to ejaculate, "this is better than Muscow." In the detail of hair brastle carees from the buttle, they race breath ercapes from the battles they ran that their wars were ever; and big with anticipation that their lost cause, which succumbed to the Cromwell energy of the Puritans, was to be revived along with their favorite County Court System, by the brains of themselves and coassociates, —and this, the dead letter of the late Liquor Act, to the contrary notwithstand.

Liquor Act, to the contrary notwithstand.

Liquor Act, to the contrary notwithstand.

Liquor Act, to the contrary notwithstand. were ruddy with gratitude, the name of —and this, the dead letter of the late Liquor Act, to the contrary notwithstanding. Gust Cresap sat silent, solemn, and supreme, exemplifying the sel-evident verity of the maxim that "a still sow drinks deep." J. R. Williamson alternately, and contusedly blustered, builled, badgered, and bragged, as became the most conspicuous,—well, we will say lion, of the occasion. T. J. Arnold glowed in the youthal blushes of innate modesty, and whisky, and only occasionally uttered some short sentiment of satisfaction, almost as incoherent, and incisive as the ed some short sentiment of satisfaction, almost as incoherent, and incisive as the remarkable dicta of his warrior uncle, the immortal Stonewall Jackson, Jim Carroll smiled softly, simperingly, and sweetly, and showed a clean set of teeth, but looked as though he would much prefer to kiss, than to bite. Indeed this redoubtable "editor and proprietor" of the Preston County Merall Indeed this redoubtable "editor and proprietor" of the Preston County Herald became so visibly impressed with the magnitude of the occasion, that like Nasby in a bar-room after a long absence, he "setually shed tears," and taking with incontinent haste to his horse, hastened home through fell and flood to his same turn, to harbinger forth through the eclectic columns of that journal, the interesting and magnificent details. Some ungracious willing present had the hardinood indeed, to suggest and affirm that hood indeed, to suggest and affirm that his premature exit was hastened by his his premature exit was hastened by his tailure as the lackey of _______, to collect the amounts of the Harness and Ogg cases; but this, of course, is an unmitigated Republican canard. But every joyful gathering must at last terminate. On Monday morning, the 5th inst., we prepared to part from our friends. The empited bottles of our Democratic overlaw were surrentifications and recognitions and recognitions and recognitions and recognitions and recognitions and recognitions are recognitions.

grined that the judge in his rulings, showed so little special favor, and particularly towards his Democratic adherents; and towards his Democratic agreering; and were mortified more than I will confess, to be compelled to realize that his con-duct was approved of by foul, base, and unnstural Republicans. Sam. Woods, however, who is the Attorney General of the Democrats here, assures several of after, and be overpoweringly able to get the judge to decide just as he likes; so you will perceive that in our present mor-tification, we are not as they who are be-yond hope. Along Detroit streets one day last weekwas asked where his father was. "Dead," responded the young gentleman, aminbly. "Where's your mother?" "Run away." he answered. His interlocutor expressed sympathy, and observed that he must feel lonesome. Did this interesting child wipe the property of the propert lonesome. Did this interesting child wipe the eye of selfish sensibility at this speech? No; his nature ran in broader, more humanitarian and artistic channels. His youthful, noble countenance glowed and brightened, and an exulting smile played upon his lips. The purest, sweetest dreams of his early years, and tender anticipations of the future mingled in the smile. Lonesome? "Not a bit of it," exclaimed this brave how, "there's goin" to smile. Lonesome? "Not a bit of it, exclaimed this brave boy, "there's goin' to be the biggest circus here next month, yer ever set eyes on." There is a striking resemblance in character between this true-hearted youth and the British child, who, on being told that his father was lost at sea, burst into tears, remarking, "he had my best jack-knife with him !
